1- The data we collect We collect certain data directly from you, including information you enter yourself, data about your content consumption and data from third-party platforms with which you connect with Udemy.This tax information may include residence information, taxpayer identification numbers, basic information, and other personal information required for tax purposes.Execution of the contract Legitimate interests (provision of services and platform improvements) Learning Data When you access content, we may collect information about the courses, assignments, labs, workspaces, and tests you have started and completed; content purchases, subscriptions and credits; Subscriptions, certificates of completion, instructors, teaching assistants, and interactions with other students, as well as certain data, such as essays, answers to questions, and other items submitted to fulfill course requirements and related content.Execution of the contract Legitimate interests (improving platform functionality, communicating content source information) Shared Content Some Services allow you to interact with other users and share content publicly, such as uploading courses and other educational content, posting reviews of content, asking and answering questions, sending messages to students and teachers, and uploading photos and other artwork.We also collect some data automatically, such as information about your device and which parts of our Services you interact with or spend time on. All data described in this section is subject to the processing activities of collecting, recording, structuring, storing, modifying, retrieving, encrypting, encrypting, encrypting, erasing, erasing, merging and transferring the data.Execution of contracts Legal obligations Legitimate interests (payment facilitation, fraud prevention, security, compliance) Teacher Payments Data If you are a teacher, you may link your PayPal, Payoneer, or other payment account to the Services to receive payments.Legitimate interests (service provision, identification, fraud prevention, security, communication) Your Profile Data You can also provide your profile information such as photo, title, bio, language, website links, social media profile, and country.Execution of the contract Legitimate interests (provision of services, platform improvements) Student Payment Data If a student makes a purchase, we collect certain data related to the student's purchase, such as the student's name, billing address, and zip code, as necessary to process the student's order.Legitimate interests (providing services, facilitating payment, fraud prevention, security and compliance) Data related to your account on other services If your social media or other online accounts are connected to your Udemy account, we may obtain certain information through those accounts.The collection, use and disclosure of data relating to your payments, invoices and taxes is subject to the privacy policy and other terms and conditions of your payment account provider.Fulfilling contracts.

Summarized by © lakhasly.com