because of its good Si-SiO2 interface characteristics, whereas wet oxidation is used for thicker layers because of its higher growth rate After the oxidation process, a SiO2 layer is formed all over the wafer surface