

Taking vital signs are defined as the procedure that takes the sign of basic physiology that includes temperature, pulse, respiration and blood pressure. If any abnormality occurs in the body, vital signs change immediately