See What it is: Multi-factor verificationMake sure you have multi-factor authentication (also known as two-step verification) turned on for every account you can.As you change passwords, each account should have a unique password, and you may want to consider creating and using strong passwords.Immediately change passwords on all affected accounts, and anywhere else you may use the same password.