The use of learning strategies aims students to develop these processes, and the better students understand and apply these strategies, the more effective they will be in improving their perception and production skills.