

I used a structured online questionnaire with 12 close-ended questions as the research tool for collecting the data. Furthermore, the study found that the most effective electronic games used for language learning among university students are mobile apps, educational video games, simulation games with language elements, and online games that include language learning features