

What are the most significant barriers that diabetic patients encounter in receiving adequate family support for self-management, and how can these barriers be overcome