I hate gossip.She proceeded to tell me all the "news" about people I knew, and people that I had never heard of. None of it was harmful on its own but it was infinitely boring and awkward. I honestly felt I was wasting my time and hers for no obvious reason. I also became very reluctant to share any of my "news" because I felt that it would very likely become public property.The more dismal the news is, the larger the audience, the higher the ratings, and the more successful the program is. "Mind your own business" is considered rude and aggressive.If you dare utter these words, you are summarily dismissed as a selfish, insensitive, and ungrateful.Why doesn't anyone tell stories or spread rumors about good days, ?successful endeavors, and happy people
