

A public stock company must have its own name and may not bear the name of another company or a similar name in order to