

I hope that by using these methods, we can offer troubled children the understanding, skills, and support they need to heal. Our goal isn't just to manage their behaviors but to help them process their past, build resilience, and develop the emotional tools to succeed