

In our lives, there are many memories, some of which are beautiful memories for us, and some that brought us a lot of pain and made us feel sad, especially if they were experiences with people we lost. Often, we do not return to memories, until they come later and we find them to smile at. I like this saying, beware of those with whom you make memories, as these things last a lifetime