

Climate change–induced environmental changes, such as sea–level rise, drought, and extreme weather events, can displace communities from their homes and livelihoods