

Crystallization Crystallization is an efficient protein purification method. Some industrially important proteins, like xylose, isomerase, cellulase, and protease, have been purified by crystallization in large-scale.