

In a communicative methodology, language is taught and learned through real-life communication tasks, such as discussions, role-plays, problem-solving activities, and information gap exercises. Assessment in a communicative classroom focuses on evaluating learners' ability to use language in communicative contexts rather than purely testing discrete grammar or vocabulary knowledge. Learners are encouraged to interact with each other and with authentic materials, such as videos, articles, or recordings, to develop their language skills.