

Foreign exchange and political risks are two of the most significant international risks for corporations