

I wish I could make a school system I wish I could plan an ideal school so that the students would be motivated and could really feel at ease .In addition, they would feel free and would love going to school to meet their kind serious friends on one hand and nice smiling hard working teachers on the other hand.....I would encourage students to practise extra curricular activities such as preraring campaigns of solidarity....writing poetry...painting...playing sports.....theatre etc.....making documentaries about pollution, corruption, poverty, drug addiction.....etc For discipline , I am quite certain that our children are usually well disciplined when adults are disciplined and can be good examples.....In addition, students would take their exams in two separate periods; for instance,they would take exams in the core subjects first: maths, physics, languages , technology and natural sciences.Also, course attendance would not be obligatory in secondary school in some subjects for example they would have to choose to study English or French as a foreign language...phylosophy or history as human sciences.....As for the teaching methodology, I think I would replace this boring out of date method (teacher+book+board) by another more practical and modern method ie : Leaving enough freedom to both students and teachers for creativity and innovation.I wish I were an architect to make a nicer design for our schools so that they would look like parks or wonderlands.....I would get rid of these grey whitish blocks that make children feel as if they were prisoners of war.....A method in which the learner is the center of the learning process ; he would participate actively in the teaching-learning process
