

Since the primary materials fused into the symbol by the creative imagination are taken from both objective nature and the mind which inspires and guides the creation, the symbol is part of what it represents.