

Language preservation: The focus on English as an international language may lead to a neglect of local languages and indigenous languages, posing a threat to their preservation and endangering linguistic diversity.