

Termination Communicative strategy ends the interaction through verbal and non verbal messages that both speaker and listener send to each other. The use of communicative strategies is the hallmark of communicative competence. Being able to use such strategies makes certain not only the achievement of the speech purpose but also the enrichment of the communication experience for both speaker and listener. Termination is one of communication strategies that provide the use of verbal and non-verbal cues to signal an end to an interaction. Prolonged clarificatory statements 2. Some examples of termination are the following: 1