

The cult of ownership is marked by a sense of belonging that arises from a series of predictable positive experiences in the cult of experience