

Vitamin A encourages healthy growth and physical fitness. It also helps to maintain the various glands, the tissue that lines the eyelids and covers the front of the eyeball functional. This vitamin keeps the moist surfaces lining the digestive canal, the lungs and air passages healthy. As vitamin A helps these tissues build up resistance to infection, it is often called the anti-infection vitamin.