

In conclusion, bionic technology has the potential to reshape human capabilities in both restorative and transformative ways.