

The internet has revolutionized the way we communicate, access information, and conduct business. Secondly, the internet has facilitated global communication. Additionally, it has opened up new opportunities for businesses, allowing them to reach a wider audience and conduct transactions online.