

In my opinion, there are two types of beauty: the beauty of appearance, and the beauty of? personality. For me, cleanliness equals beauty, not facial features or height that describe beauty. The beauty of personality is more important to me than the beauty of the outer appearance. There are many people who look beautiful on the outside but their personalities are not like their appearance, and there are those who look great and have great personalities, so I don't care about appearance but personality
