

To The Moon is a poem that Shelley has addressed to the moon. The ancient Greeks personified the moon according to the story, fell in love with a mortal, Endymion. In the poem, To the Moon, by P.B. Shelley, the poet says that the moon is pale. The moon shining in the sky has always been a mystery to human beings who have been speculating upon her nature. Just as a man's eyes may be restless because he cannot find a beloved she cannot find anybody worthy of her devotion and love. Although with man's landing on the moon investigations into the history and nature of the moon have already yielded valuable results. Perhaps the moon is pale because of fatigue. Why
