If we talk about writing errors, another example, you may find in many sources that authors or researchers say that the most common error committed by Gaza students is invertences. But if you believe or define the research paper as collecting from sources and adding something new, etc., then the way you will write it will include both collecting ideas and something new. The distinctive feature of the research paper assignment is that it requires you to develop a subject in depth. These definitions are very important because the way you define the research paper, the way you will write it. If you define it as just collecting ideas from different sources, well it means you will write it in the same way. This definition was stated by Rosen and Behrens, 1997. No, you must be a critical thinker in order to distinguish between relevant and important ideas and irrelevant or less important ideas.
