

A lot of people choose their job based on how much it pays or what other people think about that job but in Denmark one of the world's happiest countries most people take jobs that interest them that gives them a better chance to feel motivated and happy at work