

When Lynn Staffieri, a resident of Magnolia, Delaware, saw her Amazon delivery driver running away from her house, she wondered what she just witnessed. She received the notification through her Nest doorbell, a service that provides video-capture for home-monitoring and security. "I said knock three times, scream abracadabra and run very fast away," Jacob Staffieri said