

When changing an old school classroom with a new electronic one, important elements must be considered such as enhancing learning and providing new ones at a low cost. For the school community garden project, donations from students, teachers and various majors can be relied upon for various plants. Reconsidering new biomaterials available resources of choice can help reduce costs