

This describes whether it is possible to force an object into a smaller space than it normally occupies.)
(For example, a sponge is compressible because it can be squeezed into a smaller size