

Iraq continued to emerge regionally, making the confrontation with Iran a real and inevitable thing. The Russians were anticipating that the war would begin soon due to the facts of Iraqi foreign policy, and they spoke to the Iraqi authority at that time because any war between two Middle Eastern countries would harm and hinder the achievement of Soviet interests in the region, and entering In the war with Iran, this means canceling what was agreed upon between the two neighboring countries in 1975, and when the war began, it was not new news for the Russians because they knew where things were going. There was a previous agreement between the Iraqi government and the Soviets regarding this issue, so the Russians conveyed a message that they They will not increase the proportion of arms exports or make additional contracts that were talked about before the crisis. From the Russians' point of view, the act may have harmed the 1972 agreement, and according to Iraq's point of view, they may have thought that this issue is an affair between two countries, and Iraq has the right to achieve its .interests without harming its relationship with the Soviets
