

This is not a fairy tale, nor a scary story; it is the story of the discovery of 900-year-old treasure off the Korean shore. A fisherman caught an octopus that had bits of blue pottery attached to its tentacles. An urgent underwater exploration led to the discovery of thirty, perfect examples of 12th century bowls, thanks to the octopus family.