

Another example of how the concept of beauty and fashion changes with time is the way attitudes toward weight have changed through the ages