

In my view, the derived works clause is so powerful that it affects how business models are constructed. Obviously, in the case of GPL, there is the attendant duty of making the source code for derived works freely available. Generally speaking, the use of GPL reduces the profit potential of companies.