

Teamwork builds strong employee relationships because the more employees work close to each other, the more they get to know each other and develop a liking for each other. A pleasant work environment leads to higher productivity, and this helps organizations realize their goals quickly.