

I've just come back from a trip to Portugal! Winding my way through historic neighbourhoods. And our guide, her name was Paula, she grew up in Lisbon and she was just a wealth of knowledge. I actually didn't know that much about Lisbon before I went. Actually one of the coolest things we did was jump in a tuk-tuk with a guide. Lisbon, actually. My friend was attending a conference there and she convinced me to tag along! I don't usually make spontaneous decisions like that but it all just happened at the right time. I ate so many pasteis de nata, I thought I was going to burst! The city is full of beautiful cobblestone streets. I spent so much time just wandering around in the sunshine, you know? We went up this steep hill and had an amazing view over the city
