

Never assume that your shevice or network will not be the nest sarget of an attack. Taking protective measures can prevent loss of sensative or confidential data and protect systems from being damaged or compromised. A username and password are two pieces of information needed to log on to a computer .or application