

The Chinese are often punctual, always reaching for results, especially when meeting someone for the first time. For appointments or informal gatherings with friends or family, Chinese people have relied less on punctuality. Chibi