Infection control contribute to successful patient outcomes and help prevent further transmission within the healthcare setting.