

Carbon enters a long-term cycle when organic matter is buried underground and converted to peat, coal, oil or gas, deposits carbon may remain a fossil fuel for millions of years