

Cartilage is a non-vascular type of supporting connective tissue that is found throughout the body. The main cell types in cartilage are chondrocytes, the ground substance is chondroitin sulfate, and the fibrous sheath is called perichondrium. This causes it to heal very slowly.