

One of the most significant benefits of homework is its role in teaching students responsibility and time management. By assigning homework, educators encourage students to practice self-discipline and manage their time effectively.