

He defined two principal factors that influence employee motivation. The absence of hygiene factors: factors that demotivate employees if they are absent (but don't add to motivation if they are present). Such as: clear company policies, company benefits, good relationships with managers and co-workers.