

The next stage of the purchase decision stage is the information search stage, in which the customer begins to search for the best solution to treat the problem that has arisen in his hands, and the consumer begins to search a lot to collect as much information as possible from the Internet