

Chicago Sky Coach Tyler Marsh Noncommittal About Chennedy Carter's Future With Team. Tyler Marsh didn't give a clear answer when speaking about Chennedy Carter's future with the Chicago Sky. The Chicago Sky hiring former Las Vegas Aces assistant Tyler Marsh as their new head coach has brought a lot of optimism to a franchise that boasts players who appear to be on the cusp of superstardom. Reese has already asserted herself as a superstar, Cardoso showed clear glimpses of being one of the WNBA's top forwards in the future, and Carter had the best season of her career in Chicago in 2024. However, some eyebrows were raised when Marsh didn't mention Carter's name when praising Sky players during his introductory press conference. And more fuel will be added to this metaphorical fire after Marsh's recent comments during an appearance on "The Athletic Women's Basketball Show". When Marsh was asked about whether he sees Chennedy Carter as a big part of what he's doing in the future with Chicago, Marsh said, "In regards to Chennedy, she's a great player, she was a huge catalyst to what last year's team was able to do and accomplish. These players are Angel Reese, Kamilla Cardoso, and Chennedy Carter
