

Turning around to look around, I noticed that my friend was approaching me. I had the impression that this was real. I couldn't shake the feeling that this dream was a sign in the days that followed. There was a lot of tension and anticipation. It doesn't seem like a moment has passed since our last meeting