

The cranium is composed of several different bones that together make up the skull, protecting the brain and important sensory organs