

The 19th century is divided into two periods: The Romantic Period and the Victorian age. The Romantic Period (1789–1832): The main historical events and literary works that influenced the period were The French Revolution and William Wordsworth's and Coleridge's Lyrical Ballads. New machinery replaced hand labour, which resulted in unemployment, poverty and crime. 2.3.4.5.6