

Normally the presenting complaint of syncope can be established. The primary aim for an ED clinician is then to establish an underlying .ical deterioration.^{41,42} It is the acute underlying disease that most frequently causes syncope. The diagnosis, especially those associated with the potential for rapid clinical deterioration, some cardiovascular life-threatening underlying conditions are obvious.