

Ordinary citizens play a greater role in the news-making process, with the advent of citizen journalism through the internet. Using a video camera equipped with smartphones, active citizens are now enabled to record footage of news events and upload them to channels such as YouTube, which are often detected and used by mainstream media. Is the idea of news, Our study